TED COLLINS — SPORTSMAN

The saying that "everything comes to he who waits" may be applied to the professional football ownership career of Ted Collins. After six years of fielding a losing team in both Boston and New York, Ted was at last rewarded for his unwavering patience in 1950 with a winning Yanks eleven.

Buoyed up by his heretofore unfound success of his franchise, sportsman Collins is anxiously looking forward to the 1951 season, and perhaps, his first professional championship.

Always alert to opportunities, Ted's wise move in merging his New York Bulldogs of the National Football League with his purchase of the New York Yankees of the disbanded AAC was in a large measure responsible for the success of the 1950 Yanks forces. A third place finish in the strong National Division of the league was the result.

Collins' love for sports stems from his participation in athletics as a youth. He was a professional basketball player, so it was a natural for him to purchase a hoop team. He became owner of the Original Celtics for six years.

In 1941, Ted switched to professional football. That year, he bought the Long Island Indians of the American League but from the beginning he was determined to field a team in the "big time"—the National Football League.

The opportunity to do that came along during World War II in 1944, when he purchased the Boston franchise of the League and named the team the Yanks.

From the outset, Ted's team displayed a definite tendency to lean to the losing side both in the league and at the gate. But the owner was determined to be a success in the league and he refused to quit.

Following five unsuccessful years in Boston, Collins moved the franchise to New York and rechristened the team the Bulldogs. The change of scenery and name did not alter the ledger. There were more losses than wins and the financial status of the club was still being written in red ink.

The unpleasantries of those years all blew away with last year's success.

THE COACHING STAFF

JIMMY PHELAN — Head Coach

James Michael Phelan brings to the Yanks a record as being one of the most successful coaches in football history. The silver-thatched graduate of Notre Dame was a success from the start, when he undertook the Missouri job exactly two years after completing his college career in 1917.

Phelan comes to the Yanks after a year's absence from football, caused by the disbanding of the All America Football Conference in 1949. He had already made the shift from college to pro football, having resigned his St. Mary's job to become Los Angeles Dons head coach in 1948 and 1949.

Long an exponent of the old Notre Dame box formation with its tricky shift, Phelan is considered one of the most imaginative coaches in the game. He introduced four innovations to football which, at the time, were considered revolutionary. Jimmy began defensive signal calling, now so widespread, with one player using his fingers to inform his mates about the defensive setup.

Phelan also developed the weak side spinner attack from the Notre Dame box, a maneuver which used to disrupt defenses which had been in the habit of lining up with the strength ready to match the strong side of the old single wing. Phelan also was the first to use the end-around play from the box, and he introduced silk pants to football. He will use the T formation with the Yanks.

Phelan was a high school football star in his home town of Portland, Oregon, from 1911 through 1913, playing for Columbia University (which is not to be confused with the Columbia University of New York City). He entered Notre Dame, the goal of all football players of Irish extraction. Phelan captained the Notre Dame eleven in 1917. He was called by Coach Knute Rockne "the smartest quarterback I ever coached," when the great Irish mentor was commenting on the players a few years later.

From Notre Dame Phelan went into the Army to serve in World War One. He went from service right into one of the top coaching jobs in the country when he took over the University of Missouri eleven in 1919. There he began a 29-year college career in which his teams won 140 games while losing only 88.

In three seasons at Missouri, Phelan's teams won 18 games, lost 4 and tied two. The Tigers won the Missouri Valley Conference crown in their first year. His record resulted in his shifting to Purdue in 1922. Phelan remained in the Big Ten through the 1929 season. During that stretch the Boilermakers won 35 games, lost 22 and tied five.

Phelan's name will long be remembered in Purdue annals because he gave that school the only undefeated eleven it ever had. That was in 1928, when the Boilermakers won all eight games they played to become Big Ten champions.

The Pacific Coast, then the power of college football, lured Phelan back to his home territory. He shifted to the University of Washington, where he began a 12-year coaching stretch that lasted from 1930 through 1941. During that period Phelan's teams won 64 games, lost 37 and tied 8. Washington won the Pacific Coast crown in 1936 and went to the Rose Bowl.

Phelan went from Washington to St. Mary's in 1942, remaining with the Gaels through the 1947 campaign. St. Mary's developed a reputation for being giant killers during his reign, and he played in three bowl games, including the Sugar Bowl. The Gaels won 23 games, lost 25 and tied one during his reign.

Phelan's long record of successes and his high stature among his fellow coaches had, in the meantime, brought him the presidency of the American Football Coaches Association. He resigned that job, however, when he made the shift from St. Mary's to pro football, to tutor the Los Angeles Dons in 1948 and 1949. With the Dons, Phelan won 7 and lost 7 his first season. The team won four out of 12 the second campaign.

JOE SHEEKETSKI — Backfield Coach

Joe Sheeketski comes to the Yanks with a brilliant coaching background. A star halfback at Notre Dame from 1930 to 1932, Joe went early into coaching. He was Holy Cross backfield coach in 1933, serving until 1938. He then succeeded Dr. Eddie Anderson as head coach, holding that job through the 1941 season.

Sheeketski then joined the F. B. I., serving the government until 1945, when he returned to South Bend, this time as backfield coach under Hugh Devore, present N. Y. U. tutor. From Notre Dame Sheeketski went to Iowa, as line coach under Dr. Anderson, his old head coach at Holy Cross.

He then went to Nevada in 1947, where he was head coach and director of athletics until the present season.

When he became free following the dropping of football by Nevada, the mild-mannered, friendly coach was quickly snapped up by Head Coach Jimmy Phelan. Sheeketski has a solid background in the T formation, which the Yanks are using this season, having been its exponent as long ago as his Holy Cross days.

SHELBY C. CALHOUN — Line Coach

Starting his second year in association with the Yanks is a former great L. S. U. star, Shelby C. Calhoun. In his first year as a professional coach, although he had previously done a great deal of player and game scouting for the pro teams, Calhoun was instrumental in the success enjoyed by the 1950 Yanks.

Shelby coached at his alma mater after getting his degree in physical education in 1934, spending a year as assistant frosh coach and another as assistant line coach. He moved on to Mississippi State for two years as line coach, to Wyoming for another two in the same capacity, thence to Southern California for four years.

When the Trojans decided upon an all-alumni staff, "Shel" moved crosstown to UCLA where he was end coach for four years through the 1948 season. Married to the former Helene King, his L. S. U. sweetheart, he is the father of two sons. Hs is a native of Monroe, La.

NICK SUSOEFF — End Coach

Nick joins the Yanks coaching staff with a great past history as an end. He starred with the San Francisco 49ers for four seasons, being considered an outstanding offensive and defensive wing. In 1948, he caught 27 passes for 237 yards and an average gain of 8.8 yards. Susoeff graduated from Washington State College in 1942. He was all-Coast and received all-American mention as well. During the war, he was selected on the all-Service teams of 1944 and 1945, while playing for the 2nd and 4th Air Forces.

A BACKWARD GLANCE AT 1950

The season of 1950 was by far the most successful in the seven-year history of the football Yanks. Propelled by the second best offensive team in the entire National League, Coach Red Strader's charges finished third in the strong National Division with a 7-5 record. After getting off to the fastest start in the loop with six victories in the first seven contests, the Yanks faltered in the next five games, dropping four of them.

Financially, the season provided a distinct change from the script owner Ted Collins had been so accustomed to in previous years. While the team still operated in the red after the season had closed, the red did not extend to as many figures as before. In fact, in the way of attendance, the Yanks showed the best average in their history. High point in this respect were the two games with the Chicago Bears when the teams drew almost 100,000 fans to the Yankee Stadium and Cubs Park.

The 1950 season had another notable aspect in that the Yanks scored their first triumphs over the Bears and Green Bay Packers. Previous to last year, the eleven from the Midway had taken the Yanks in camp three times while the Packers showed four victories over them without a setback. The Yanks defeated the Bears 38-27 in New York (but lost to them in a return engagement, 28-20) while Green Bay was an easy mark twice.

The high-geared Yank offensive machine was led by five newcomers to the NFL. George Ratterman, who starred for Buffalo in the AAC, led the league and set a new club record in touchdown passes with 22. He also created another club standard with 2,251 yards gained via his tosses. The other newcomers who performed brilliantly throughout the season were Zollie Toth (sixth in the league standings in ball carrying with 636 yards gained), Dan Edwards (second in the loop in pass receiving), George Taliaferro (second in team rushing with 411 yards) and Sherman Howard (tied a club record with a 5.1 average on rushes).
